The story goes that charcoal buried in the soil is stable for thousands if not hundreds of thousands of years and increases crop yields. The proposal to grow crops on hundreds of millions of hectares to be turned into buried 'biochar' is therefore widely seen as a "carbon negative" initiative that could save the climate and boost food production.

You missed the mark a bit there. You pointed out that, "Intelligence is not equal throughout the races. Examples of this are evident in the inventiveness of a particular group, what technologies they create, the societal structure they create, their art and their sciences", a statement which in and of itself is a contradiction.
